CHINA'S SECRET SOCIETIES.

The Boxers described by some of the Paris Journals.
Many contradictory explanations of the Boxers' uprising have been given. The following extracts, translated at random from Le Journal, Le Matin and other Paris newspapers which have interviewed some of the Boxers, throw additional light upon the Chinese insurgents. Le Journal says:

Who knows those immense lands peopled by hundreds of millions? Those who speak about them with the greatest authority have spent weeks, months, years, perhaps, in two or three inland cities, living like Europeans in European quarters, seeing about China only restricted conditions and talking even through interpreters with the persons employed by their functions to deal with foreigners. And the Chinese themselves, what do they know about China? It is too large. The people in the Southwest live in the most absolute ignorance in regard to what is going on in the center of the northeast. It is so much so that within ninety miles of the coast, which would be a vast number of people, the Chinese-Japanese war, and not for a single day was doubted the victory of the imperial arms, and finally the people highly praised the son of heaven for having at last succeeded in his mission to grant amnesty to the "Japanese," and to send them back to their distant lands.

In fact, there are almost no newspapers in China, and even they study it from a very special point of view. For a long while European newspapers, and especially the imperial power is very imperfectly exercised over the provinces, and that every governor, or viceroys, enjoys a most absolute authority toward the central government. That viceroys himself has been made, left free to act as they please, provided they pay the fixed amount of revenues to the viceroys. The authority being thus subdivided, multiplied, and the causes of discontent and suffering for the people, who are taxed at will.

Those who suffer have conceived the idea of making themselves, and as every grouping became suspected and was ferociously repressed, secret associations, constituting a kind of Freemasonry, with their own signs of recognition, were formed. The most important of these societies are known under the names of "The Pure Tea," the "Kilif's Son," the "Vempfar" and the most widely spread among the cultured classes is called "Heaven, Earth, Man."
To these names Le Matin adds that of the "Closed Hand," and says:

The society of "Closed Hand" is a branch from the "Closed Hand" and they must have been called so by some English-speaking man residing in China. The mother society is one of those numerous and richly endowed, which exist in the celestial empire, as there existed in Spain the "Black Hand," in Italy the "Red Hand," in France the "Camorra," etc. China, with its dense population and democratic regime, is a beautiful land for such associations. They disguise themselves under the name of religious, philanthropic, philosophical or utilitarian. Thus the "Closed Hand" claims to be necessary to a grand association. But it is a thoroughly political association, without any religious or philosophical tendencies. It aims at a real war, a war of revenge, against the Manchus, the conquerors of China. But its branch, the Boxers, leaves to the future the settlement of that question, and directs its attention to the future of the Europeans, whose infiltration into China is of more recent date and its cause, if uncorrected, will mean a real war, a war of revenge, against the Manchus, as thoroughly as it has been subjugated by the Manchus. These associations, which are the cause of the Boxers, without which no office can be obtained in China, but which do not guarantee the holding of such offices, there are more applicants than places. These are at the head of most of the secret societies. They teach the people that the cause of the invasion of foreigners has caused the misery and want of work recently so prevalent in China.

FORAKER'S SPEECH
Senator From Ohio Nominates William McKinley for President.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO A STATESMAN
Reviews His Record as the Nation's Chief Executive.

RECEIVES GREAT APPLAUSE

CONVENTION HALL, Philadelphia, June 21.—Senator Foraker, in presenting the name of Mr. McKinley to the convention, said:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: Alabama yields to Ohio, and I thank Alabama for that accommodation. Alabama has so yielded, however, by reason of a fact that would seem in an important sense to make the duty that has been assigned to me a superfluous duty, for Alabama has yielded because of the fact that our candidate for the presidency has, in fact, been already nominated. (Applause.) He was nominated by the distinguished senator from Colorado when he assumed the duties of temporary chairman. He was nominated again yesterday by the distinguished senator from Massachusetts when he took the office of permanent chairman; and he was nominated for a third time when the senator from Indiana yesterday made the platform (Applause.) And not only has he been thus nominated by this convention, but he has also been nominated by the whole American people. (Applause.) From one end of this land to the other, in every mind, only one and the same man is thought of for the honor which we are now about to confer, and that man is the first choice of every other man who wishes republican success next November. (Applause.)

On this account it is that it is not necessary for me to say one word to speak for him here or elsewhere. He has already spoken for himself (applause), and to all the world he has a record of noble and brilliant achievements (applause), a record that speaks at once both his performance and his highest ability. (Applause.)

Has Confidence of American People.
Four years ago the American people confided to him their highest and most sacred trust. Behold with what results. He found the industries of this country paralyzed and prostrated. He quickened them with a new life that has brought to the American people a prosperity unprecedented in all their history. He found the labor of this country everywhere idle; he has given it everywhere employment. He found it everywhere in despair; he has made it everywhere prosperous and buoyant with hope. He has built up railroads and factories and mines everywhere closed; they are now everywhere open. (Applause.)

And while we have admired that he is sending their surplus product in commercial conquest to the very ends of the earth. Under his wise guidance our financial standard has been firmly planted high above and beyond assault, and the wild cry of "16 to 1," so full of terror and long hair in 1893, has been put to everlasting sleep. In the name of the American people, I commend to you the man who has done this. (Applause.)

With a diplomacy never excelled and rarely equaled he has overcome what at times seemed to be insurmountable difficulties, and has not only opened the way for peace, but he has advanced our interests in every land. (Applause.)

Waged a Successful War.
We then little knew that he would be called upon to encounter all the trials of war. That unusual emergency came. It came unexpectedly, as wars generally come. It came in spite of all he could honorably do to avert it. It came to find the country unprepared for it. But he found him equal to all his extraordinary requirements. (Applause.) And it is no exaggeration to say that in all American history there is no chapter more brilliant than that which chronicles his war, and his war, his chief of our victory on land and sea. (Applause.)

Three days we drove Spain from the western hemisphere, kindled the earth with our acquisition and filled the world with the splendor of our power. (Applause.) The American flag, a new and more significant now. Our flag has a new glory. It not only symbolizes human liberty and political equality at home, but it means freedom and independence for the long-suffering patriots of Cuba, and complete protection, education, enlightenment, upliftment and ultimate freedom for the millions of Porto Rico and the Philippines. What we have so gloriously done for ourselves we propose to do generously to do for them. (Applause.) We would not if we could. (Applause.)

Fitting Place for Convention.
"A fitting place it is for this party to make such a declaration. Here in this magnificent city of Philadelphia, where the evidences so abundant of the rich blessings the republican party has brought to the American people. Here at the birthplace of the nation, where our own Declaration of Independence was adopted and our Constitution was formed; where Washington and Jefferson and Hancock and John Adams and their illustrious associates wrote their names to the great charter that center so many historic memories that stir the blood and flush the cheek and excite the nerves of the human liberty and patriotism. Indeed, a most fitting place for the party of Lincoln and Grant and Garfield and Blaine (applause); the party of freedom and independence for the long-suffering patriots of Cuba, and complete protection, education, enlightenment, upliftment and ultimate freedom for the millions of Porto Rico and the Philippines. What we have so gloriously done for ourselves we propose to do generously to do for them. (Applause.) We would not if we could. (Applause.)
